

Month - 1

Rider - Beginner / Relatively unfit but on a comeback

Total hours per week - 5 to 7

Our aim is to help you see real world improvements, so this month starts off with a test to define your training levels. It's a hill climb with an approximately 5% average gradient. You'll be doing this test at the start of each month, so it will be a great way to track your improved times up this climb as well as your FTP power number.

How to get the best out of this program

We've outlined specific FulGaz sessions for you. Try to do these no matter what. You don't have to do them on the days we suggest, but it's best not to do them on consecutive days because you want your legs to be fresh enough to go at the target power levels for the sessions.

We've also outlined general direction and training volume to accompany the FulGaz sessions. You could do these in FulGaz, outdoors or in another app.

IMPORTANT

Some of these sessions will be longer than you're used to. While longer sessions play a really important part in improving your fitness, it's more important to do at least half of each session rather than doing one and leaving yourself too tired for days.

Week 1

Aim to do all the FulGaz sessions. Ideally, on the days suggested. All other sessions are suggestions only. The key is to take note of the intensity you are expected to ride at on the non-FulGaz days.

Further notes to help you

IMPORTANT What if the sessions are too long for you?

Get through as much as you can. While it might feel like failure, completing half of every session in the first month is big achievement that will help you improve. This is a much better approach than fighting to finish one session then not riding for the rest of the week because you're too sore.

What happens if I miss a day or need to travel for a few days?

Don't stress, we won't throw you off the program! We had a limited number of people we could give access to, so we gave priority to people who would get a lot of benefit from the program. If you miss one day, you're generally going to be getting a bit of recovery so the general guide is as follows

1. Missed a day because of work commitments - do climbing sessions for the next two days in a row to catch up
2. Missed a day because you were sick - forget about it, you need the recovery

If you need to travel for a while for work or a vacation, try to ride or exercise if you can then just jump back in on the relevant day

Go EASY on the easy days

One of the biggest mistakes keen amateurs make compared to their professional counterparts is to go too hard on their easy days - Only to then not be able to go hard enough when they need to do a tough session. If you ever get the chance to go for a ride with a Pro bike rider, you'd be amazed how slowly they go on their easy days. If that sounds like you, set yourself a limit of 50% of FTP on the flat and avoid hills on your easy days.
